Dodgers Trying For Series Win At Home

'DEFLATED BUMS MEET YANKEES FOR THIRD TIME

Hatten And Newsom Match Pitches Before Ebbets Field Crowd

BULLETIN

The Brooklyn Dodgers exploded in the second inning to score 6 runs and blast Yankee pitcher "Bobo" Newsom for four runs on six hits, and relief pitcher Raschig for two more on a double by Carl Furillo.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—It figured to be tougher than a day on the rockpile, but Brooklyn's deflated and ignominious Dodgers—having suffered every other indignity—were face to face today with the most embarrassing moment of all.

They weren't to be allowed conceal their overnight ignominy. Instead, they had to parade it at Ebbets field, of all places, in the third game of a very astounding World Series with the New York Yankees.

To state the brief and callous facts without benefit of charity, Dodger ineptitude and the Brooklyn premier of the series were to come home together for the edification of a rabid clientele.

From all indications, it ought to be good.

• • •

ONLY A WEEK or so ago, they rode the Dodgers in triumph through the streets to the acclaim of a half million throats, so great was the pride in the so-called "Bums."

It was only toward the close of yesterday's 10-3 harliquinade at the Yankee stadium that they learned they had been right all the time, without knowing it. And, worse still, that the Dodgers were a most paltry and inferior order of bums.

This tardy realization was the thing that gave piquancy and eclat to today's Brooklyn inaugural, which started off behind one encouraging feature. Only a little more than 32,000 of these primitive, uninhibited self-expressionists could get through the Ebbets Field gates to see it.

• • •

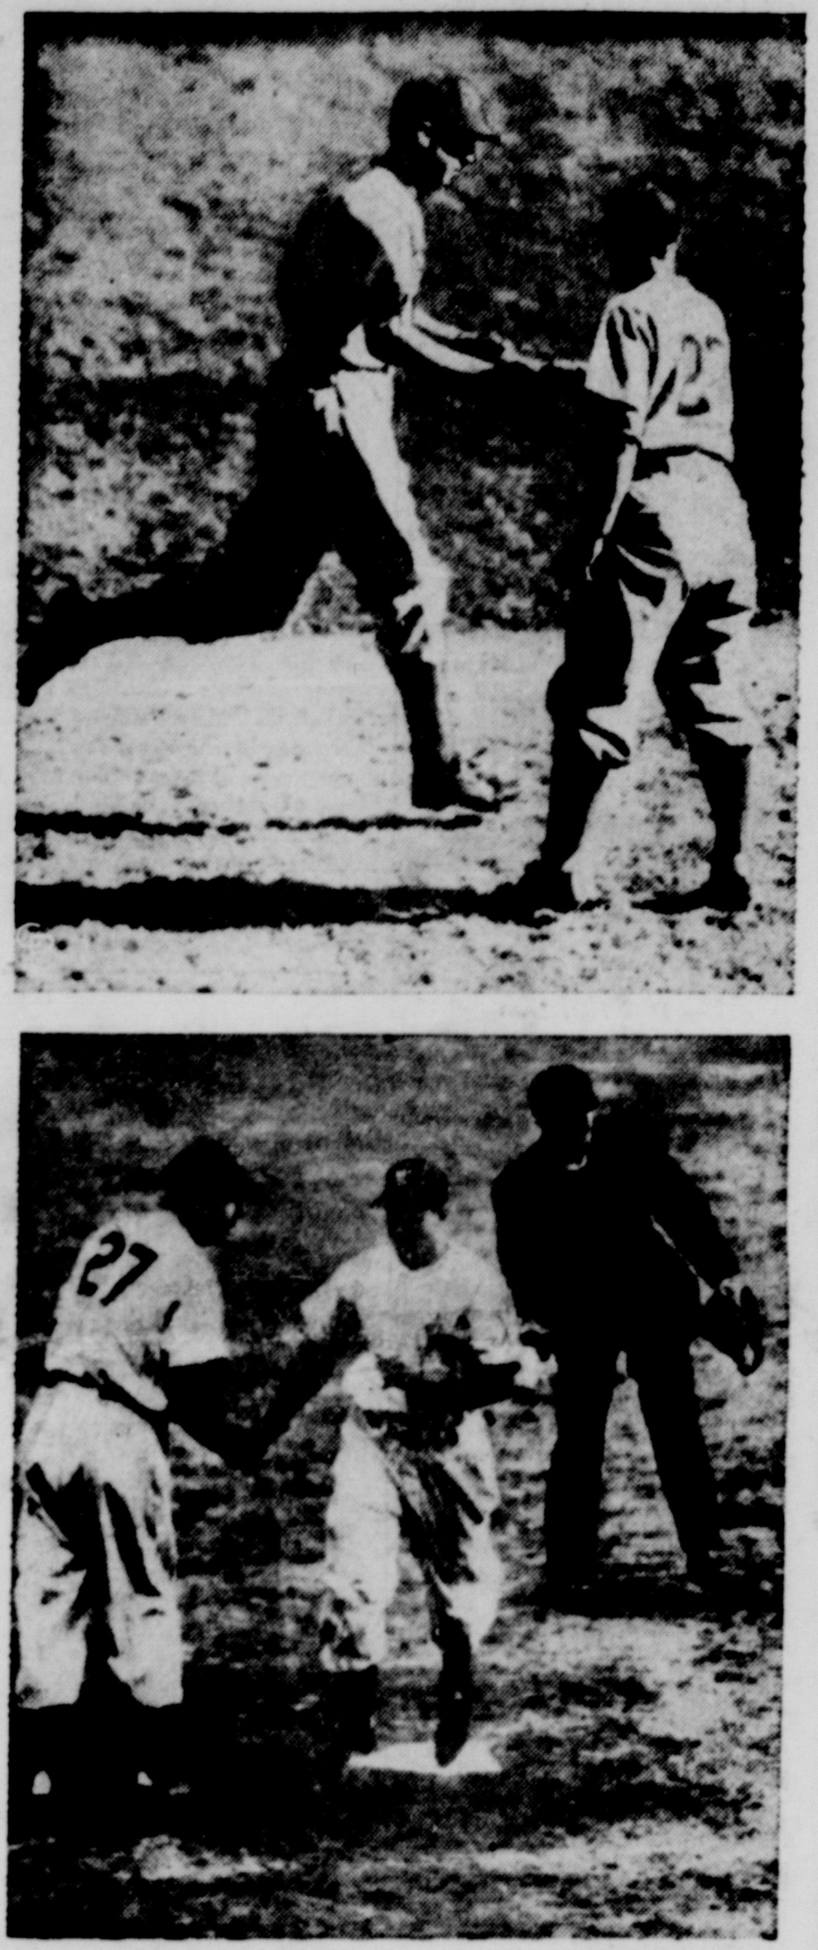
LESS STIMULATING was the report that Burt Shotton, the harried manager, was dallying with the idea of a few line-up changes in the forlorn hope of doing something abrupt and drastic about the Yankees' two-game lead.

Meantime, Shotton was turning his attention to something easier, like, for instance, today's pitching, which had been simplified by the fact that Joe Hatten was about the only candidate left.

Mr. "Bobo" Newsom, the resurrected blabbermouth, was the Yankee nominee—having been announced as such more than a week ago. Newson won 11 during the regular season, Hatten 17. However, the best thing about Ebbets field today was probably the weather, which incidentally wasn't very good.

MORE OPPOSITION

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2—The building trades department of the American Federation of Labor was slated to join today in a growing drive to put John L. Lewis "on the spot" for his refusal to sign a non-Communist affidavit.



HOMERS sprayed the Yankee stadium as the New York Americans and the Brooklyn Dodgers turned their heaviest guns on each other in the hit-happy second game of the World Series, with the Yanks outslugging their foes to win, 10-3. Top above Brooklyn's Dixie Walker crosses the plate to be congratulated by Dodger Coach Ray Blades after hitting first home run of the game in fourth inning. In other picture Yankee's Johnny Lindell greets Tommy Henrich, New York outfielder, as Tommy crosses the plate after hitting a home run to start the Yank fifth inning attack.

American Family Life Studied By New Group

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—A nation-wide campaign to root out influences hostile to American family life took definite shape today under the auspices of 11 major national organizations and with President Truman's blessing.

The campaign picked up speed with the announcement that a national conference on family life will convene at the White House on May 6 to diagnose the ills and enemies of family life and to recommend remedies.

An estimated forty million people are represented in the groups making up the sponsoring unit. They include education, health, legal, youth, social service, business and labor organizations.

• • •

RELIGIOUS groups of the Catholic, Jewish and Protestant faiths are also part of the overall unit.

The three-day conference is being planned by Eric Johnson, president of the Motion Picutre Association of America, who is serving as chairman of the board of directors of the group and Boris Shishkin of the AFL who is vice chairman.

Johnston today emphasized that the organization is "not a continuing organization, nor a pressure group for legislation." He said:

"The purpose of the meetings will be to find specific ways in which all Americans may work together to build their life around a family core and come to grips with the most important problems confronting the family today."

FIRE TRUCK HE HELPED MAKE USED TO SAVE CAR

Seven years ago William Sherrill, Columbus, helped to manufacture a fire truck which, manned by Circleville firefighters, raced to Mead, at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday when a short circuit set Sherrill's auto ablaze.

Chief Talmer Wise, who estimated the damage at $40, said Sherrill told him he recognized the fire truck as one he worked on in the factory of the Seagrave Corporation.

Promotions Announced For USAF Commanders Near Russian Frontiers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 — The reorganized air force indicated its estimate of possible future developments today when it increased the rank of USAF commanders closest to the Russian frontier.

Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, former chief of research and development, was promoted to lieutenant general and sent to Europe where American air forces were commanded until recently by Maj. Gen. Idwal H. Edwards.

In Alaska Lt. Gen. Nathan F. Twining replaces Maj. Gen. Howard A. Craig.

Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington, referring to the Twining appointment, said that Twining had an "outstanding overseas record," and was sent to Alaska because of the "extremely difficult" weather and flying conditions there.

• • •

EDWARDS AND Craig also were promoted to lieutenant generals in their new assignments in the United States. Edwards was appointed deputy chief of staff for personnel and Craig deputy chief for materiel.

Air force chief of staff Carl Spaatz said that the USAF would have an announcement on Alaskan activities in the near future. In Alaska the air force commander is in charge of the entire theater, having under him

Holy Land Tense As Group Of Refugees Near; Arabs On Strike

JERUSALEM, Oct. 2—One of two unauthorized Jewish immigrant ships nearing the coast of Palestine was reported today to have radioed that it is encircled by British ships but will fight to reach its goal.

The Holy Land was gripped by new tension with the anticipated arrival of the two shiploads of Jewish refugees and as a result of an Arab general strike.

The incoming steamers previously were identified as the Paducah and the Northlands. Presumable the names of the craft were changed as they neared the Holy Land, as the approaching ship identified itself as the Guelah (Redemption).

FIVE - YEAR - OLD MISSING PLANE MYSTERY SOLVED

FRESNO, Cal., Oct. 2—A grim mystery of nearly five years' standing was solved today with the identification of a demolished plane found atop the 13,700-foot-high Darwin glacier in the high Sierras.

From markings on the wreckage the craft was identified as a plane which had disappeared—with four men aboard—during a routine wartime training flight after taking off from Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 19, 1942.

Pilot of the plane was Lt. W. R. Gamber, 23, of Fayette, O. The other three who lost their lives in the mountaintop crash were air corps cadets Eugene Munn, 23, St. Clairsville, O.; John M. Mortenson, 25, Moscow, Ida., and L. M. Mustonen, 22, Brainerd, Minn.

The wreckage in the mountains behind Fresno was reached by an Army search squad flown to the area in two transport planes from Hamilton field.

The squad set out in jeeps and then took to horseback. The last stage of the precarious ascent was made on foot, with the aid of picks, across the icy face of the glacier.

First clew to the long-missing plane's whereabouts was turned up several days ago by William Bond, 22, a mountaineering university of California sophomore.

Bond found a piece of an airplane motor and an Army badge in the mountains. When he returned to the valley, he notified Hamilton field.

RETURNED TO PRISON

LONDON, O., Oct. 2—William S. Hart, 27-year-old lifer who escaped from London Prison Farm on Aug. 29, was being returned today from Pittsburgh, where he was apprehended and exonerated in the slaying of a farm girl.

RUHR VALLEY WARNING GIVEN

France, The Netherlands, Belgium Say Germans Must Not Get Mines

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—France, Belgium and the Netherlands have warned the United States that placing of Ruhr valley coal production in German hands ultimately will result in a threat to European peace.

The state department admitted today that separate notes have been received from the three countries expressing such a fear.

The department said the notes represented an expression by the three governments of the inherent dangers in returning the Ruhr mine management to the Germans.

The notes recalled the pre-war cartels which held coal supplies to a minimum for countries outside of Germany.

• • •

IT APPEARED that the French, Belgians and Dutch primarily fear that Germans will again get control of the allocation of Ruhr coal.

A spokesman for the state department pointed out that allocations are firmly in Anglo-American hands, and will remain there for an indefinite period of time.

It was expected that replies to the three notes would go forward shortly.

FIFTY VIENNESE POLICE CHARGED IN 'NAZI PURGE'

VIENNA, Oct. 2—Fifty Vienna policemen—including 30 on active duty—were arrested today on charges of participating in the Nazi purge of Jews in Poland in 1943.

Twenty of those arrested had been police before Austria's liberation.

Former SS General Ohlendorf, now a defendant in the Nuernberg atrocity trials, was in charge of the Polish "liquidations."

Meanwhile, Johann Rixinger, formerly criminal inspector of the Gestapo in Vienna, pleaded not guilty to charges of sending Austrian Jews to concentration camps and stealing their property.

Rixinger, who claimed membership in the Nazi party as far back as 1933, joined the SS following the "anschluss."

'MYSTERY' FIRE DAMAGES CARS, PHONE SYSTEM

600 Telephones Out After Spectacular Blaze In Weill Garage

Circleville fire and police departments Thursday were endeavoring to ascertain the origin of another in the series of mysterious fires which during the last 14 months have taken place in Circleville.

At 10:20 p. m. Wednesday firemen were summoned to battle a spectacular blaze of undetermined origin which badly damaged the five-car frame garage at the rear of the residence of Harry E. Weill, 129 East High street. Flames shot high in the air and a large crowd of spectators assembled at the scene.

• • •

A 1938 SEDAN owned by William Raymond was badly damaged by the flames, and Fire Chief Talmer Wise estimated the car damage at $700. Chief Wise estimated the damage at $300 to the 1947 auto of Edwin B. Jury, manager of the Ohio Consolidated Telephone company. The flames seared the finish on one side of the car before it could be removed from the blazing garage.

Chief Wise estimated the damage to the garage at close to $600. Most of this was to the south end of the structure and the flames severed a telephone cable which ran nearby. The result was that more than 600 telephones, mostly in the northeast section of the city and extending into the rural areas, were out of commission.

• • •

THE LOSS to the building and contents was at least partially covered by insurance, Chief Wise said. Luckily, a telephone company cable truck, ordinarily housed in the south end of the Weill garage, was out at the time of the blaze. Robert Griesheimer, who also houses his auto in the garage, had not put his car away for the night.

Chief Wise said that Wednesday night's fire was "just as mysterious" as the several unsolved fires—mostly to barns

'NUBBINS' FACES 1000 - 1 ODDS IN FIGHT FOR LIFE

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 2 — The parents of 6-year-old Forrest (Nubbins) Hoffman completed plans today for the child's second serious operation in three years.

Nubbins, who cheated death in 1944 in a rare operation performed after his case was called "incurable,' now faces odds of one thousand to one against him.

The boy has not been told he must return to a hospital in Denver next Monday for the operation.

Nubbins attracted wide attention three years ago when his parents told of plans for an early Christmas for him because he was not expected to live until the holiday. Gifts, ranging from tricycles to dogs, poured in and Nubbins lived to enjoy them.

The first operation was for a kidney ailment. His mother said he tires easily, and that the new ailment developed from his earlier trouble.

The new condition is described as similar to rickets.

YOUTH ACCUSED

CHICAGO, Oct. 2—A 15-year-old youth was held today after police said he had confessed stabbing a minister's wife to death and criminally assaulting another housewife. The youth, James Hartmann was arrested on the accurate description given police by Mrs. Mary Clausen, 25, the attack victim.

New Low Of 29 Brings More Frost

Heavy frost early Thursday with the descent of the mercury to a new seasonal low of 29 degrees added to the crop damage which was caused by Wednesday morning's frost with a low temperature of 30 degrees.

The weatherman, however, predicted a letup in the cold snap. The official forecast said the mercury would climb to around 70 late Thursday afternoon and that the Circleville area will enjoy a few days of warmth.

The high temperature reading Wednesday was 61. At 8 a. m. Thursday the thermometer registered 35 degrees.

Rainfall in Circleville in September measured 5.04 inches and Charles Carter, weather observer, said this was above the average September precipitation. The August total was 5.91 inches which also was above normal.

TAFT OPPOSES UMT PROGRAM

Ohio Senator Set To Attack Truman Administration For 'Errors'

CASPER, Wyo., Oct. 2—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R) O., chose Wyoming today as the platform from which to attack the Truman admisitration for its "errors" and to counter Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's endorsement of universal military training.

The undeclared presidential aspirant prefaced the final speech of his six-state barnstorming tour with a statement charging that universal military training would "encourage war" and prove an "obstacle to peace."

• • •

HIS STAND was contrary to that taken by Dewey, the party's 1944 presidential nominee and poll-leading prospect for 1948. The New York governor endorsed UMT a few weeks before Taft began his western trip.

Taft traveled to Casper from Cheyenne, where last night he defended the GOP record in congress and appealed for support of the Republican party in next year's presidential election.

His Casper speech tonight was billed in advance as a free-swinging criticism of President Truman's policies on both the domestic and foreign fronts. Associates intimated it would be the most strongly worded indictment Taft has yet levelled against the Democratic regime in Washington.

On the universal military training issue Taft recommended a program to strengthen the National Guard on a "voluntary paid basis," supported by intensive research and intelligence programs.

U. S., RUSSIA TO DEBATE ON GREEK ISSUE

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y. Oct. 2—The United States decided today to lock horns again with Russia on the Greek issue.

The latest American challenge is to precede a vote in the U. N. political and security committee on the American proposal to create a special Balkan border commission and brand Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania guilty of abetting guerrilla warfare.

Seventeen nations were listed as speakers prior to the expected vote, with the U. S. S. R. ready to take the floor immediately after the American delegation has completed its statement.

MEATLESS DAYS BELIEVED OUT OF PICTURE NOW

Committee On Conservation Of Meat And Grain Urges Voluntary Rationing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 — The citizens' emergency food committee was revealed today to have rejected a proposal by its chairman, Charles Luckman, for "meatless" and "wheatless" days to provide additional relief for hungry Europe.

Highly - placed sources disclosed that the 26-man committee of prominent Americans voted down Luckman's suggestion with the contention that "specialities" such as "meatless" days would be of "doubtful" value.

As a result of its refusal to call for specific conservation measures, the committee confined its initial efforts to a general plea for the nation to eat less wheat products, meat, poultry and eggs.

• • •

THE NATION wide food conservation campaign formally gets underway Sunday night when President Truman, Secretary of State Marshall and Luckman will make a radio appeal to the country.

The 30-minute broadcast will be carried by all major networks starting at 10:30 p. m., EST, Sunday.

In addition to the proposed "meatless" and "wheatless" days, the food committee is considering the possibility of reducing the size of bread loaves and of urging the distilling industry to cut down on its grain consumption.

The committee also is drawing up specific menus which restaurants will be asked to follow in order to reduce the consump-

WOMAN ESCAPES INJURY WHEN AUTO HITS TRUCK

Although her new 1947 sedan skidded approximately 250 feet after having crashed against a one and one-half ton truck loaded with lumber, Mrs. Lenore Allard McCabe, 56, Portsmouth, was uninjured, it was reported Thursday by Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff. He said the mishap occurred Wednesday noon on U. S. Route 23 near the Pickaway-Franklin county line. The sedan and truck were badly damaged.

Deputy Radcliff said the truck owned by the McNally Lumber company, Columbus, was driven by Byron Crawford, 22, Columbus, and that the accident happened when Crawford was negotiating a left turn into a driveway at the Pickaway power station. The deputy said Crawford insisted he signaled for the left turn. Deputy Radcliff said the speedometer indicated that Mrs. McCabe's auto had been driven only 2,000 miles.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

The price news is confusing. There is a report of a man who sold his wife for $950—is that inflation?

The super salesman said, after the deal, that he had no regrets. I don't know about the customer.

Then there's a story about a woman who got lock-jaw laughing at her husband's jokes—several husbands have applied for the jokes.

But there is no way of telling at his writing whether it was a case of strong jokes or a weak jaw.

On the statistical side there is news that of America's college girls, eight per cent do not like to be kissed by boy friends.

It is assumed that the other 92 per cent have boy friends.

tion of certain foods such as meat and bread.

• • •

BOTH THE President and Secretary of Agriculture Anderson explained that the feeding of meat animals to heavier weights and better quality must be slashed if Mr. Truman's goal of saving 100 million bushels of grain is to be realized.

Anderson admitted the marketing of hogs and cattle at lighter weights this Fall might contribute to a meat shortage next Spring and possibly to higher meat prices in 1948. But, he said:

"This is an emergency action. You have to take your choice if we are going to have enough cereals to export now."

The agriculture secretary pointed out that the government could go into the grain market with an "aggressive" buying program and purchase the additional 100 million bushels needed, but that such action was out of the question because of its certain effect to drive up grain prices.

• • •

MEANWHILE, the President's decision to leave the question of a special session of congress to consider foreign relief up to four key legislative committees drew a sharp protest from the Americans for Democratic action.

The ADA, headed by former OPA chief Leon Henderson, declared that the proposals announced by Mr. Truman and congressional leaders "fall tragically short of the demands of a world crisis."

The organization, which numbers former housing expediter Wilson Wyatt and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. among its members, demanded a special session to restore price controls and compulsory rationing.

House Majority Leader Halleck accused Mr. Truman of attempting to pass the buck to GOP leaders on calling a special session.

Secretary of State Marshall food conservation committee's threw his support behind the appeal for Americans to "buy wisely, eat sensibly, waste nothing." Marshall declared in a statement:

"In short, all of us must 'declare war on waste' in this country in order to win the 'war against hunger' in Europe, and its menace to world stability."

• • •

LUCKMAN, in announcing his committee's appeal for a voluntary self-rationing program, outlined a five-point program for the nation's housewives to follow in conserving food. He said housewives should:

(1) Buy cheaper cuts of meat, eliminating "fancy steaks"; (2) serve less food on their dinner plates and cut out "second" helpings; (3) be careful not to overcook meat; (4) use leftovers to make hash, stews, soups and stuffed tomatoes; and (5) use poultry, eggs, butter and cheese sparingly.

THE USAF promotions also underlined the importance of research and development, and tactical aviation.

Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, senior air force member of the military staff of the United Nations and former occupation chief in Europe, was named head of the air material command at Wright Field, Dayton, O.

The deputy for materiel, Benjamin W. Chidlaw, was promoted from major general to lieutenant general.

Promotion of Elwood R. Quesada, in charge of the tactical air command, from major general to lieutenant general indicated that the air force considered cooperation with ground forces more important than formerly.

FRANK A. DAVIS NAMED TO STATE LIQUOR POST

Appointment of Frank A. Davis, 616 South Court street, a former Pickaway county sheriff, to the position of liquor permit examiner, was announced Thursday in Columbus by State Liquor Department Director Dale Dunifon.

The announcement said that Mr. Davis is one of 19 newly named permit examiners in a newly-created division of the Ohio Department of Liquor Control.

Director Dunifon explained that 16 of the 19 have been enforcement division inspectors, that their duties will be to investigate liquor permit applications, that their first job will be to check more than 1,000 requests already submitted for new tavern and night club licenses which were recently lifted from a wartime "freeze".

The appointments, Director Dunifon said, became effective Wednesday at a $200 monthly base salary with legislative increases.

Mr. Davis served two two-year terms as sheriff of Pickaway county, namely 1928-1931, and he was succeeded in office by the present Sheriff Charles Radcliff. Mr. Davis has heretofore been employed as an inspector in the liquor department. He is a Republican.

SANDLOT TEAM EQUIPPED WITH SHAW UNIFORMS

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2—Some $300 worth of football uniforms was returned to suburban East Cleveland Shaw high school today by police who recovered the uniforms from a neighborhood football club.

The flashy, red uniforms were stolen last Thursday night from the school's locker room. Police Lt. Edwin M. Polk said doors of the lockers had been forced open.

A member of the Shaw team recognized one of the stolen helmets being worn by a teen-age player in a sandlot game Sunday and called police. The youth implicated five others who also were picked up.

All the uniforms were recovered. Police turned the youths over to their parents pending a decision on what action to take by Shaw officials.

REFUGEES FACE AUTHORITIES FOR ILLEGAL ENTRY

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 2—Eight Estonian refugees who landed in Miami after a 5,000-mile voyage from Sweden in a 40-foot yawl, face immigration authorities today regarding their entry into the United States.

The refugees, headed by Capt. Kalme Veski, included three men, three women and two babies. They said they were fleeing from Russian domination and wanted to start life anew in the United States.

Francis Dever, Miami immigration chief, said they probably would be denied entry into the United States at today's hearing before immigration officiers.

Capt. Veski said the party left Goteborg, Sweden, July 22. His wife, Hilda, said they were political refugees. The Veskis brought with them their two baby sons, Vello, 18 months old, and Hillard, 3 months.

Two other couples in the group are Heinrich and Elfred Redik and Elmar and Akelina Kalme.

Permanent residence was granted to 48 other Baltic refugees who landed more than a year ago, but 24 who arrived at Savannah, Ga., last Sept. 17 were being detained at Ellis Island, N. Y., pending appeals on exclusion rulings.

FICHTER SAYS U. S. SHOULD BE GLAD TO HELP

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2—State Grange Master Joseph W. Fichter said today that Americans "should be thankful that we have a supply of food sufficient to enable us to share with the people overseas who face starvation."

Fichter told a luncheon meeting of the Columbus Co-Operative Civic Club that cutting down on food waste and paying higher prices would be rewarded by the "satisfaction that comes from answering an appeal for aid."

The Grange head warned, however:

"If our purpose in furnishing food to Europe is to find a market for our goods or merely to win support in international political diplomacy, we shall later pay the price for such motives."

Fichter said farmers emphatically favored that use of grain for alcholic beverages be halted "if it is necessary to feed less grain to livestock as a means of food conservation."

$320.61 DAMAGES SOUGHT AS RESULT OF ACCIDENT

Judgment for $320.61 against Arthur Nungester, 213 Third avenue, is sought in a suit filed Wednesday in Pickaway county common pleas court by the Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance company, Columbus, and Mrs. Lucinda Doersam, Route 1, Groveport, as a consequence of a U. S. Route 23 traffic accident April 27, 1946.

Special security measures were taken in the all-Jewish city as Tel Aviv and other Jewish communities after Hebrew sources expressed fear that disturbances would result from the strike.

Haganah, underground arm of the jewish agency for Palestine, revealed that those aboard the ships are to broadcast messages in various languages to the Jewish community as they approach Palestine.

Haganah said that the two ships should have entered Palestine waters last night but their arrival was delayed when they took evasive action in an attempt to shake British surveillance.

(The naval correspondent of the London News Chronicle said that the Jews are using heavily camouflaged decoy ships in Palestine waters in an effort to hinder royal navy interception of the unauthorized immigrants.)

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

"It's Living That Counts"

I stole the title of this column from a magazine article that said a whole lot better than I can what farm and country life can mean.

We talk about farm profits, production, research, and mechanical improvements ... but isn't it true, what we really value is the life country living offers us? ... the chance to be close to our families and neighbors ... children sharing in the chores ... working with our own hands at a worthwhile job.

And country pleasures are simple: good talk at day's end, and a glass of mellow beer with friends ... the companionship of man and wife, unruffled by distractions of the city ... the mutual tolerance of one another's tastes—in choosing a friend, or a glass of beer, or a candidate for Governor.

Mind, I'm all for material improvements. But from where I sit, the real goodness of our country life is that spirit of tolerance, moderation, and good fellowship.

NEW HIGHWAY PROJECTS READY FOR BIDDING

Jobs Totaling $23,600,000 To Be Awarded Between Oct. 28 And Dec. 16

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 2—Following a conference with Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, Ohio Highway Director Murray D. Shaffer announced today his department has approximately 124 projects, totalling $23,600,000, ready for sale between Oct. 28, and Dec. 16, this year.

"Since the highway department already has $18,808,444 worth of work under contract on 321 projects since the first of the year and should the sales of the additional 124 projects be successful, Ohio will enjoy its biggest construction and road maintenance year since the highway department was established back in 1904," Governor Herbert said.

"Other projects will be added to this imposing list, Director Shaffer informs me, as soon as right-of-way clearance is completed with the least inconvenience to those effected because of housing problems."

DIRECTOR SHAFFER pointed out that two sales will be conducted between the September 16 and October 28 dates. The one on September 30 included 23 projects while the other on October 14 lists among the 17 projects improvements in Hamilton and Mahoning counties, which combined will run more than three and a half million dollars.

The Hamilton county job included the construction of a steel beam bridge over Mill Creek and a concrete pedestrian overhead structure over US route 25 in Cincinnati, Lockland, Arlington Heights and Springfield township and a grade crossing elimination over the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railroad and Anthony Wayne avenue and a steel beam bridge over US route 25 in Cincinnati and Arlington Heights.

The Mahoning project includes the reconstruction of an existing grade separation with the Erie, Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania railroads and constructing a tied stell arch bridge over the Mahoning river and another bridge over the West Front street extension in the City of Youngstown.

TRIBAL DISAPPEARANCE

GALLUP, N. M., Oct. 2—One of the mysteries of New Mexico is the disappearance of the so-called "Chaco Indians." Evidence discovered by archeologists indicates that thousands of people lived in Chaco Canyon, about 60 miles northeast of Gallup, in the 11th century A. D. But no general cemetery has been found near the Chaco pueblos, although the Indians lived there hundreds of years.

MAYOR URGES CITIZENS TO AID CRIPPLED

'Employ The Physically Handicapped Week' Set For October 5-11

Mayor Ben H. Gordon Thursday called attention to the observance of "National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week," issuing a proclamation urging Circleville residents to join the program.

This is the third annual observance of the week, authorized by 79th congress in 1945. Purpose of the week was declared by congress to be "To enlist public support for an interest in the employment of physically handicapped persons."

The proclamation states:

"Whereas, the people of this city are interested in the employment, rehabilitation and economic problems of the physically handicapped, and;

"Whereas, a recent nation wide survey has proved that qualified handicapped workers are an asset to employers if given the opportunity to serve, as well as to the community as self-supporting and respectful citizens, and;

"Whereas, all citizens should recognize the obligation this nation owes to those who returned from service in the armed forces with physical disability and are in need of employment assistance, and;

"Whereas, it is the ability of the handicapped—not the disability that counts.

"Now, therefore, I, Ben H. Gordon, Mayor of the City of Circleville, do hereby declare the week of October 5th through 11th, 1947, as Employ The Physically Handicapped Week, and I call upon all local officials, employers, civic organizations and citizens to put forth every effort to recognize the abilities of our handicapped friends and to promote the hiring of their skills in the business, industries, and organizations of our city.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the city of Circleville to be affixed.

FARMS BEING CHANGED INTO MODEL LAYOUTS

Four Years Of Soil Practices Being Done In Day On Licking Plots

BROWNSVILLE, O., Oct. 2—Soil conservation practices came into their own today.

An army of some 400 volunteers, mostly ex-GI's, moved in on the run-down hill farms of John Rodman and George Latham, on route 40 a half-mile west of the Licking county village of Brownsville.

When dusk falls tonight, those run-down hill farms will have ceased to exist.

In their stead will be two beautifully - patterned examples of contour farming at its best. One eight-hour period will see a face-lifting of nature that would take even a progressive farmer, working on his own at least four years to accomplish.

* * *

THE ERODED hillsides are being contoured by the construction of nearly a third of a mile of diversion terraces. Every square yard is being earmarked for its most efficient use—even if that use is to be put back into forest.

Three hundred and 25 tons of lime, and uncounted tons of other fertilizer, are being spread. More than 800 rods of new fence are being constructed; hundreds of rods of old fence are being moved.

Forty rods of drain tile are being laid. Sixty acres are being seeded to wheat and rye. An even larger acreage of model pasture is being converted. Erosion is being checked; its previous ravages overcome. Even a farm pond of more than a half-acre is being constructed.

* * *

THE OCCASION is the "opening of the second frontier" —a demonstration arranged by the Licking county soil conservation service in conjunction with the federal soil conservation authorities.

The whole operation was spread before the easy view of thousands of spectators who were jamming into a natural amphitheater which lies across route 40, the national highway. Early arrivals indicated that the demonstration may outdraw a similar prewar exhibition in Iowa which was witnessed by more than 40,000.

Rodman's 128 acres and Latham's 83 acres will remain spread out as models to all who pass along the famed coast-to-coast highway. It was their great good luck to have their farms chosen for the demonstration because of this location.

* * *

ALL LIME, fertilizer, fence and seed was donated by dealers. All the equipment is being loaned by manufacturers, including 75 tractors, 30 lime drills 27 two-bottom plows, eight tractor-powered post-hole diggers, and numerous other pieces of super-modern farm machinery.

The demonstration was to get under way with a pageant featuring the vehicle of the old frontier, the Conestoga wagon which pioneers used to trudge along the same national highway generations ago.

Another highlight was the spot cultivation and the liming which, when completed, will disclose a replica of the nation's flag that will cover a 17-acre hillside.

One of the loneliest places on the globe is Tristan da Cunha, a group of islands half way between the Cape of Good Hope, Africa, and South America. It is difficult for boats to reach because of its rugged shores. About 225 persons, descendants of shipwrecked sailors and soldiers from St. Helena make a rude livelihood there.

MARINE CORPS HAS NEW RULES FOR NON-COMS

Officer in charge of the U. S. Marine Corps recruiting station, 242 Post Office Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, announced today a change of policy whereby former non-commissioned officers of the Marine Corps reenlisting within a prescribed time may retain their non-commissioned officer status.

Now, former master sergeants who reenlist in the Marine Corps within one year after discharge from active duty may be appointed to the rank of technical sergeant. Ex-technical sergeants who reenlist within 90 days after discharge may be reappointed the same rank; if reenlistment is contacted within one year they will be appointed to the rank of staff sergeant; within two years to the rank of sergeant.

A former staff sergeant or sergeant who effects reenlistment within 90 days after discharge from active duty status may retain the rank held at separation. If his reenlistment is effected within two years after discharge he will be appointed to a rank one grade lower than one that was held at discharge.

This new policy was effected for the benefit of those ex-Marines who desire to reenlist but under the old regulations could not return to the Marine Corps as non-commissioned officers.

75 MILLION IN OHIO SALES TAX NOW COLLECTED

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2—Sales tax collections for 1947 had passed the 75 million dollar mark today.

State Treasurer Don H. Ebright reported that the $2,173,700 collected the week ended September 20 boosted the year's total to $75,866,589—just about 19 millions less than the 95 millions which budget makers estimated would be produced in the entire year.

The week's receipts exceeded the $1,670,262 of the comparable period of last year by more than a half-million dollars.

The total is more than 12 millions more than the $63,670,811 collected in the same portion of last year to date.

TEACHING HISTORY

THROUGHOUT the country history teachers are facing their pupils in elementary schools, high schools and colleges. Do they realize the heavy responsibilities they have assumed? It is not enough that they transfer dates, events and names of world leaders from text books to the minds and ultimately the examination papers of their charges. Are they making the story of mankind fascinating, or are the daily lessons dry as dust, deadly to both pupil and teacher?

There has been too much poor instruction in history. Efforts now should seek to make this subject vital to every American boy and girl. It does not matter what country's history, or what age's drama is being studied. Certainly the history of the United States, presented in relation to contemporary international events, should be so set before school children that they carry through life a basic knowledge of their country's background. In some states American history is a must for a high school diploma. It is a good idea.

Above all, history teachers should aim to make their subject alive. With history taught as a vital subject, boys and girls can be inspired to work for world peace. The elimination of war from the globe will take the best efforts of all citizens. In the hands of history teachers rests a heavy obligation.

EUROPE FACES LEFT

EUROPE has definitely turned toward the left and there is no use in ignoring the fact. So Jan Masaryk, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, has told the United Nations general assembly.

Countries which have prospered under a system of economic individualism may not like the idea, but the fact remains that most European states have decided for public ownership of important segments of their industry.

There have been suggestions that further loans to Britain should be conditioned on that country going no further with its program of Socialism. Also the United States has been cool toward schemes for nationalizing the iron and coal industries of Germany's Ruhr valley.

As lenders of money needed for restoration, we may be within our rights. We do not, however, add to American popularity by insisting that European countries should follow our economic ideas instead of their own.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Whether the money-lender is a small town banker or a Wall Street financier or a government, the same wise rules of conduct must obtain. Money moves from one person to another or from one institution to another or from one government to another, except taxes, by the same processes. These are:

1. Either goods and services are sold;
2. Or, gifts are made from one to another;
3. Or, credits are established called loans, which are negotiable in goods, services or money transfers, for the use of which a fee is charged called interest.

It is to the third category that we are now to address ourseves. And at the start two confusions must be cleared away. The first is that a loan can never be a gift nor a gift a loan. Lend-lease, during the war, was declared a loan but became a gift. This led to disastrous confusion and ill-will. Secondly, prudent lending is the same among governments as among individuals. When prudence disappears, the lender and borrower end their transactions in quarrels and hatred. If governments are involved, lack of prudence at the beginning of a kindly transaction may end in war when the kindliness is replaced by suspicions as to motives on either side.

The first essential of lending, then, is prudence. This neither Harry Hopkins, the lend-leaser, Nelson Rockefeller, the good neighbor, nor the current lenders, Truman, Marshall, Snyder, Clayton, Lovett or Douglas understand. Jesse Jones was a prudent lender because he is essentially a small town banker, whose money-lending helped to make his small town a big city.

When the British were the leading money-lenders of the world, they always made sure that a loan had two characteristics:

1. That there was security. Sometimes they used an entire nation as security, as, for instance, when they took control of the Chinese maritime customs and the salt tax as security. Sometimes a loan was secured on railroads. They always used their army and navy to protect the security of the loans.

2. That the security was productive. To lend money for non-productive purposes is profligate. The British loan of $3,750,000,000 is an example of non-productive lending. Most of the Wall Street foreign loans made in the 1920's were non-productive. That helped to bring on the depression of 1929.

The Marshall plan does not call for loans; that involves a subsidy, a gift. Such transactions are always bad because they inflate the recipient. They are bad for individuals; they are bad for governments. But the Marshall plan is a more honest transaction than a non-productive loan, for it admits its nature whereas the non-productive loan is always a lie.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE .... Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:
Up to the first morning of ice, but the shining sun and tang of Fall in the air made for joy of living. Dawdled only briefly over coffee and then headed downtown to find the earlier citizenry alert and happy. Much talk of the World Series and a wealth of confidence in ability of the Yanks to swat the Bums out of the elite class of baseball. Soon about on foot, stopping here and there for a chat, but acquiring little of news value. Noted Tom Renick hurrying toward the courthouse. He, rumor has it, is slated to become a member of the election board, plugging an existing gap in the Republican membership.

Picked up the old newspaper clipping Cum Robinson found when the Grand-Girard store remodeling was started for Joe Burns. The one dealing with the theft of an elephant by Circleville. No. date, but publication probably was about the turn of the century. The entire article follows:

Under the title, "On the Altar of Patriotism," in the Argosy for December, C. C. Waddle, a former mayor of Chillicothe, tells of the stealing of an elephant by the citizens of Circleville and how the shame was wiped out.

In the story Chillicothe is given the hifalutin, euphonious name of "Yoctangee," while Circleville is dubbed with the dinky name of "Doodleburg."

According to the narrator, the Yoctangeeites firmly believed that every resident of our town would steal, and to prove it they would point to "The crime of '73," when the Mastedon circus came to town and one of the elephants vanished; and they would close the argument with this clincher, "Is it likely that any one could steal a full grown elephant and get away with him, if the whole town hadn't been in on the deal?"

As an evidence of their belief in the truth of the statement that we all are thieves, the fact is cited that whenever a Chillicothean comes to our town he leaves his watch and other valuables at home and carries his money in a belt.

Coming to the story as to how the shame was wiped out, Mr. Waddle tells how the sting of the stolen elephant was offset. Colonel Hawk of Yoctangee conceived the idea of building an electric line from that city to Doodleburg; the citizens of this city were opposed to it, and only a bare majority of votes could be secured in the council; and if the mayor vetoed the ordinance, the project would be killed.

The ordinance was passed and the mayor said, "the law allowed but ten days for consideration, and that he would take no definite action on so important a matter until the time had expired."

At half past nine in the forenoon of the tenth day a body of masked men entered our city building and our mayor disappeared as completely as the elephant had done.

Two days later the mayor came back and requested a public meeting of the citizens that evening in front of the court house. At this meeting the whole population turned out, but the reception to the mayor was frosty.

The mayor addressed the crowd, saying he had been in favor of the line all the time, and was greeted with hisses. He further said: "I have intended since the beginning to approve this franchise, but I proposed to make Yoctangee pay for it. I allowed myself to be abducted ostensibly in order that the francise, having failed to receive my veto within the statutory limit should stand as though approved; but really in order to forever silence the taunt which heretofore we have had to hear unrebuked.

"This is the point for which I have striven—it is certain that never again will we be forced to endure the insulting inquiry: "Who stole the elephant?" for we can demand with even greater emphasis: "Who stole the mayor?"

Concluding, the writer says: "A roar of frenzied delight swelled up to the silent stars. Doodleburg accepted the mayor's explanation, and ratified it. They cared nothing for the passing of the franchise; their ancient shame was wiped out."

DIET AND HEALTH

Effect of Smoking on Weight

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WILL smoking make you thin? Every doctor has been asked this question hundreds of times, not only by those who hope to find in this habit a magic aid to reducing, but by heavy smokers who fear its effects on digestion.

Because of the widespread belief that excessive smoking may account for failure to gain weight or even for malnutrition, several doctors of Santa Barbara, California, carried out some studies to determine the actual facts.

Their Object

They sought to find whether smoking affected the flow of the various juices which control digestion—secretions such as the bile from the liver, and those from the duodenum, or first part of the intestine.

In carrying out their study, a tube was passed into the duodenum through the mouth; then the secretions were collected and analyzed to determine the amount of digestive elements present. The persons being tested were then given three cigarettes to smoke in succession. Next, a second specimen was collected in the same way, without removing the tube.

Both smokers and non-smokers were tested. It was found that in the group of non-smokers, the smoking of three cigarettes in succession had no noticeable effect on the secretions of digestive substances or upon the rate of flow of the secretions from the duodenum. This was true even though the smoking was distasteful to the majority of those tested. However, it was noted that there was some decrease in the bile secretion in about half of the group.

In the group of smokers who were tested, again, no effect was noted on the digestive substances, but the bile secretion was diminished.

Therefore, these physicians, who incidentally were Dr. Alfred E. Koehler, Elsie Hill and Norman Marsh, concluded that although excessive smoking may be a factor in weight loss in certain persons who are already underweight, it does not act by lessening the secretions in the duodenum, but rather by causing a mild loss of appetite.

A Bad Taste

Often, they say, the group of persons mentioned had a bad taste in the mouth which disappeared after smoking was stopped. Cutting down the smoking definitely improved the appetite. The increased appetite, plus increased food intake, were the main causes for weight gain.

Thus it would appear that there is no evidence that reasonable smoking interferes with the secretion of the digestive juices to the point where the digestion of food is interfered with.

As I have so often said, it is not as a rule the use of a thing but its abuse that does harm.

ALTHOUGH there are splendid auguries for success and outstanding accomplishment, through some exceptional idea, insight, "hunch" or inspiration, executed by forth-right and aggressive action, at the same time a false move, over-doing, or any other over-rated gesture, may result in disrupting the best laid and intentioned plans.

In the more personal or emotional realm there may be a very happy, glamorous or even poetic adjustment or compensation for sterner missteps.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a rather critical state of affairs, in which promising and progressive foundations may go askew, largely because of bad judgement, rash or false moves, in which a really valid hunch, intuition or bright idea may be pushed unreasonably to over-reaching climax. CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

NORAH WENT up the stairs and knocked. A door opened and she and Gail stood face to face.

There was a moment of complete silence; stunned on Gail's part, weary and uneasy on Norah's. And then Gail said, stepping back, her tone formal. "This is a surprise. Won't you come in?"

Norah followed her into the room and for a moment the two girls stood studying each other. Gail on guard, wary, a little frightened; Norah puzzled, not quite certain how to begin.

"How—how in the world did you find me?" Gail asked at last.

Norah managed a small grin.

"No trick at all," she answered. "I just sort of thought where I'd gone if I'd been in your place and from there on it wasn't hard. A round of the employment offices, and then when we'd almost given up hope, Paul thought of the United States Employment Office and we went and there you were—a trail a mile wide, Gail."

"I see," said Gail formally. "What I can't see is why you should have thought it necessary."

Norah answered quietly, "Your mother is at Twin Oaks, Gail. She's terribly upset because you're not there."

Gail caught her breath and her eyes widened.

"My mother? Lissa—at Twin Oaks?" she gasped incredulously.

"With her new husband, Mr. Kincaid."

"Husband? Then she and Martin—"

Norah nodded. "He's rather nice," she said unexpectedly. "And they want you with them."

Gail shook her head.

"No thanks," she said briefly.

"Uncle Charles and Kate are terribly worried about you."

"They needn't be. I'm doing beautifully. I like my job. I like being on my own."

Norah looked around at the big, pleasant room. To Lissa it would have seemed dingy and depressing; to Norah, it looked attractive and very comfortable.

"I can understand that, Gail," she said quietly. "Only your mother is terribly upset, and hurling accusations every which way. If you would just come back and convince her that we didn't drive you out against your will—"

Gail hesitated, and there was still that wary, guarded look in her eyes.

"Just tell her that I am here and she can come."

"Greg is downstairs," said Norah quietly, and was sick with pity for the white, stricken look that touched Gail's face for a moment before her self-control reasserted itself.

Her chin tilted a trifle and she said coolly, "Greg and I have nothing more to say to each other—aren't you glad?"

"Glad? Why should I be?" puzzled Norah.

Gail made a little swiftly controlled gesture.

"Let's stop pretending, Norah," she said harshly. "I know that you are in love with Greg and that, underneath, he loves you. You are right for him. I'm not—I couldn't ever be. Don't you suppose I know why you cried yourself to sleep night after night while I was falling in love with Greg? I saw you weeping in his arms the night he and I quarreled."

Norah said unsteadily, "Oh, Gail, you are so wrong. I'm not in love with Greg—I've never been. Why, we were like brother and sister. I cried, Gail, because—because—my husband may never recover from his illness."

Gail put out a shaking hand and clenched it upon the tall back of a chair, and the knuckles were white with the tensity of her grip.

"Your husband, Norah?" she repeated incredulously, her voice very faint and low. "You—are married?"

Norah looked older and almost haggard beneath the impact of memories buried deep in her heart that she had not dared allow herself the luxury of recalling—until now when they must be brought up and spread out before Gail's eyes.

"It was a secret marriage," she said very slowly. "We were terribly in love. He didn't want to be married before he went overseas, because he felt he might not come back, but I wanted terribly to be really his wife. We both loved Uncle Charles and Kate; we knew they'd worry about us and grieve and so we decided to keep it a secret until he came back. Only Greg knew."

She was very still for a moment and her eyes were full of tears, her soft mouth quivering.

"Well, he came back, Gail, but he doesn't know me. He's—he's psychopathic, mentally disturbed." She flung up her head and stiffened her voice and said harshly, "He is insane, Gail!"

Gail's little choked cry of distress was smothered in her throat by the white, tense courage in Norah's face, her steady, tragic eyes.

"Do you wonder, Gail, that I cried myself to sleep? Do you wonder that I found it hard to tell anyone or that I turned for comfort, when the going got almost unbearable, to the one person who knew? And so you wonder that I'm glad Uncle Charles and Kate don't know?" Norah hid her face in her hands.

For a moment it was on the tip of Gail's tongue to say, But Kate does know. I saw it in her eyes the night Greg and I told of our engagement. But she checked the words. So much was understandable now, so many small, puzzling things. Charles did not guess, but Kate knew; and that night her eyes had told Greg that she knew.

Norah flung up her head after a moment. Her face was white, but her eyes were brave and steady.

"The doctors at the hospital gave me a little hope at first," she said with a hard-won calm that, to Gail, was more poignant than the bitterest display of grief could have been. "But the night before you left—when you came to the mailbox—I had a letter from them. They had been trying an experiment. I'd let myself hope—and the experiment had failed. I felt as though everything had been swept away. It would have been so much easier, Gail, if he hadn't come back at all. This—this is a living death."

Gail's arms were about her, holding her close, soothing her, all barriers that had ever been between them brushed away in this tragic moment.

Norah regained her composure first and the courage with which, somehow, she managed the faintest possible smile touched Gail more deeply than tears could have done.

"You'll come with us to Twin Oaks, Gail? Just to convince your mother you're all right and that we didn't horsewhip you?" she pleaded.

"Of course, Norah," answered Gail impulsively. "I'll have to call my boss and explain."

She showed Norah the bathroom so she could repair the ravages of her tears, and went to the telephone in the downstairs hall. She had no difficulty in getting Dr. Stewart's home number, and Dr. Stewart came to the telephone.

Swiftly she explained; she must go back to the country for a day, possibly even two. But she would come back as quickly as she could, if only Dr. Stewart could spare her.

"If you have to go, I suppose you have to go," he agreed reluctantly.

"You'll keep my job for me?" she pleaded.

"Saints above us, yes!" almost roared the doctor. "You don't think I'd go through the ordeal of finding and training somebody else, just when you're beginning to be extremely valuable? Certainly I'll hold your job. Only, for heaven's sake, get back as soon as you can! Please, ma'am!"

She thanked him and laughed a little at his sudden humility, and went back upstairs. Her heart was hammering hard at the thought that Greg was just outside the house, that in a few minutes she would see him; but she reminded herself that nothing had changed. He still despised her, perhaps more so than ever, now that he knew Lissa. For she had no illusions on that score. Lissa would seem, to Greg, the most useless and spoiled creature imaginable. Gail stiffened a little. After all, Lissa was so lovely and so gay and sweet—who could expect her to be useful and practical and earthly,

"The Authority on Authorities"

DEDUCE HIS REASON

Your partner must be presumed to have a brain, hence to have some kind of reason for what he does. If you base your own planning upon that premise, you can often figure out why he made a particular move and therefore how you can help him to gain fullest value from it. Failure to do that has the same effect as if you two defenders were merely sniping at the declarer from different directions, without any co-operation between you. In brief, you are then co-operating with the declarer instead of with your partner.

Many rubber players would have chanced 4-Spades in the North after South's rebid, but every pair in the social duplicate was sound enough to quit at 3-Spades, which some made and some didn't.

It was made where the play went thus: the club K and J won, the Q was ruffed by South, three spades were cashed and then tricks were lost to the two red aces. It was also made at another table where West's lead of the club K was overtaken by East's A and the diamond A cashed, then the club 5 returned to the J, whereupon West led a third club, his Q. Those tables showed a distressing lack of thought by West about why East overtook the opener and then laid down his diamond A.

At a couple of tables West was wide awake. After East overtook the club lead and laid down the diamond A, then returned the club 5, it was clear to West as to what East was doing. It could only mean that East had a singleton diamond A and wanted to ruff the suit. So West led the diamond 6 to the fourth trick, East ruffing with the spade 6. Seeking to put West in the lead again, East switched to his heart 4 and was overjoyed to see his partner come in with the A. Another diamond lead then enabled East to get a second ruff with his spade 7 and thus set the contract a second trick.

Miss Bumgarner Weds L. J. Carle Wednesday Morning

Miss Dorothy May Bumgarner daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bumgarner, route 2, Ashville became the bride of Lawrence Jacob (Sam) Carle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Carle, route 2, Circleville, on Wednesday morning.

The Rev. Father Edward J. Reidy officiated at the nuptial ceremony in the rectory of St. Joseph's Catholic church at 10:30 a. m.

For her wedding the bride chose a royal blue crepe frock and a corsage of white rose buds. Her dress featured a beaded bodice, with a jewelry neckline and a full side drape on the street length skirt. She wore a small black hat trimmed in wine feathers and carried a silk handkerchief, brought from Japan. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom.

Mrs. Jack Lake, route 2, Circleville, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. For the occasion she wore a victorian green frock, made on princess lines. Silver nailheads out-lined the neckline. She had a corsage of white carnations and yellow pompoms and used accessories of burgundy.

Carl Bumgarner, route 2, Ashville, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Bumgarner were hosts at a dinner party in their home following the ceremony for members of the immediate families.

A minature bride and bridegroom topped the large wedding cake placed in the center of the bride's table. Tall tapers were used in candelabra at either end of the table.

Mrs. Bumgarner wore a wine dress with accents of dark blue. Mrs. Carle selected for her son's wedding a violet dress and used brown accessories.

The bride was graduated from Walnut township high school and has been employed at the Ashville Banking company. Mr. Carle attended Williamsport high school and served two years in the Pacific theater of war during World War II.

Later in the day the new Mr. and Mrs. Carle left for a trip through the South-east. They will spend some time with Richard Bumgarner, brother of the bride, at Norfolk, Virginia. Upon their return they will make their home in Jackson township where the bridegroom is associated in farming with his father.

Meat that is well finished is well larded. It is tasty and tender because the fat filters into the connective tissues.

Once a package of raisins is opened, transfer the contents to a tightly covered jar or tin. This keeps them from drying out and becoming hard on the shelf. In warm, humid Summer weather it keeps them from absorbing moisutre and molding.

If frozen fruits are to be kept after they have been thawed, heat quickly just to the boiling point. Chill and store fruit in refrigerator.

TRIESTE PEOPLE DIVIDED ABOUT COMING OF WAR

Workers Doubt New Conflict Near; Students Fearful Of Early Outbreak

By KINGSBURY SMITH
INS European General Manager

TRIESTE, Oct. 2—People of the free state of Trieste, one of the greatest danger points in the world, are sharply divided in opinion as to whether war is coming.

Workers generally are inclined to doubt that there will be war. Professional and intellectual persons are more fearful of a third world conflict.

With the armed forces of three nations representing the East and West facing one another on a virtual war footing amid rampant nationalism and bitter political strife, I expected to find fear of war at fever pitch in this international hot spot.

Such apprehension would be understandable in view of how near the military forces of East and West actually came to open conflict on the night of September 15-16 when the Yugoslavian army tried to bluff its way past American and British troops into the city of Trieste, which they were not authorized to enter.

* * *

THE VERY FACT that when the bluff was called, the Soviet satellite soldiers refrained from carrying out the threats to shoot has encouraged the belief generally that war is not coming because Russia does not wish to risk it.

There are some, of course, who fear that the antagonism between American and Soviet policy in world affairs is growing so rapidly now that the force of circumstances may precipitate war within a year.

Those who holds this pessimistic view in Trieste, however, are a very small minority, some of whom are wishful thinkers.

More representative of the intelligent opinion is the view expressed by Professor Giogio Roleto, former head of the University of Trieste and one of Italy's leading experts on geo-politics. He said:

"The danger of an armed conflict between the United States and the Soviet Union certainly exists. It is a potential reality. However, it is not an imminent danger.

"Russia today is not prepared technically to wage war against the American colossus. However, with the growing pace of Russian rearmament and the availability of raw materials which she has found in the countries occupied by her troops or under her influence, the danger of a shooting war grows.

* * *

"WHEN THE Soviet Union becomes strong enough, a mere incident involving prestige might provoke a conflict.

"Ideologies are important, but they do not by themselves cause war.

"What really divides the allies and is the cause for Russia's present attitude is the struggle and search for raw materials.

"This is driving Russia into the Balkans, southeast Europe and to the middle eastern oil fields.

"The best way of avoiding the conflict between East and West is for the United States to maintain a strong stand against Soviet expansionism.

"This will certainly postpone, and might well prevent entirely acts of aggression on the part of Russia's satellites. It will also act as a check on the kremlin's defiant, challenging diplomacy.

"In the long run, however, the causes of friction between East and West will be removed only by a fair distribution of the World's wealth.

"Perhaps above all by a fair division of the surplus of human labor. In other words, an unhampered flow of goods and labor more justly distributed in the world markets."

* * *

AN ITALIAN Communist leader in Trieste said:

"There is no danger of war.

"I am convinced of that because I am in contact with the working classes.

"If, however, the capitalist nations, encouraged by Truman's reactionary policy should dare provoke a conflict, they will have the answer of the masses—revolt and armed insurrection.

"That will be our means of preventing the criminal designs of the warmongers from being put into effect."

CHS Squad In Good Shape For Game Here Friday Night At 8

Circleville high school Tigers were ready, willing and able to score their fourth football victory of the 1947 season Friday night.

Opposing their efforts to keep their victory string intact will be a team from Washington township, Scioto county. Gametime is 8 p. m. on the CHS field.

Washington township school, located near Portsmouth, is playing its second year of football. Last year the Tigers won over the Scioto countians here by a 25-0 score. It was the third game in which the school had ever participated.

Coach Herb Everling has informed CHS officials that his team will average about 152 pounds on the line and 148 in the backfield. If these figures come pretty close, the Tiger line will find itself evenly matched for the first time this season. In previous encounters the Tigers have been outweighed considerably.

* * *

CHS COACHES Steve Brudzinski and Tommy Bennett reported Thursday the Tigers apparently were in good shape for the contest. "Ouchy" places seem to have healed and the CHS club is slated to be at full strength for the contest.

"Skeet" Smallwood may be the silent quarterback Friday night. He has been having trouble with his throat and it may be necessary to draft a spokesman for him during the game.

Lineup for the game probably will remain about the same as has started in previous games. In the backfield Bob Ferguson or John Valentine will get the starting nod at game time to join "Skeet," "Red" Crawford and Harold Hill.

ZANESVILLE, O., Oct. 2—The Zanesville Dodgers were hot on the trail of their third straight Ohio State League championship today. The Dodgers went two games ahead in the final playoff series with Marion when they won last night's game, 2 to 1.

Daffiest World Series Moves To Ebbets Field For Third Game Today

By LAWTON CARVER

EBBETS FIELD, Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 2—The daffiest World Series in baseball history finally has landed right where it belongs—at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, on the banks of the Gowanus Canal, U. S. A.

These clownish fellows can go through their antics from here on out in the proper setting. This series was made to order for Brooklyn, which was brought up on the idea that all ball players should be hit in the head by a fly ball occasionally.

When the Yankees won the first game by 5 to 3 on Tuesday in a stagger, the onlookers seem to think that the Dodgers might still have a chance to escape not only defeat but the fate that says they must look silly.

That belief or hope was short lived. Yesterday we saw the Dodgers of old in there playing like the Dodgers of old.

It was pretty terrible.

That score of 10 to 3 in favor of the Yankees is bad enough, but it can't begin to tell you what went on during that second ball game of this World Series.

There is no indication of a change for the better. The Dodgers may maul Yankee pitchers, but it is a virtual certainty the Dodger pitchers will be mauled worse.

At the outset of this shambles I predicted a Yankee victory in four straight. I see nothing to contradict that.

FOR UTTER futility, empty thinking and all-around bad baseball no one has even seen a worse ame than yesterday's. As good as the Yanks may be—or as bad—they have not as yet been forced to prove anything. The Dodgers beat themselves.

If that sounds as though I am taking something away from the Yankees, I can add that the Yankees helped themselves somewhat.

The weakest position on the Yankee club—and the only one comparable to the Dodger weakness—is behind the bat.

Yoga Berra seems determined to convince everybody that he is a Dodger at heart at a time when his Yankee team-mates are walloping the Dodgers into defeat.

Yoga is a fellow from St. Louis who is built like a fire hydrant, and his catching ability is so utter negligible that by this time everybody must know he got into the series on the long chance that he might hit a ball into the stands when such a hit is needed.

Yoga drops some pitches, he throws inaccurately, and on pop-ups within five feet of him leaves it to the infielders to make the catch and then bawls them out when they fail—as he did yesterday.

ASHVILLE REDS WILL PLAY AT COLUMBUS AGAIN

A determined group of Ashville baseball players will go to Columbus Sunday, seeking a victory that will mean a lot to the team, the town and the league they represent.

The Reds will meet Reynoldsburg, Heart of Ohio league champs, at 2:30 p. m. Sunday on the State Hospital field in the capital city in the final of a three-game series. Each team has won one game.

The South Central Ohio league, championship of which was won this year by the Reds, has been called the toughest semi-pro circuit in the state. In order to uphold that claim the Reds feel they must win Sunday.

Manager Carl Gulick plans to use the pitcher that beat Reynoldsburg at Ashville in the first game of the series, big, right-handed Mark Wylie. The Ohio U. athlete will be opposing George Spencer who quit pitching footballs for Ohio State to concentrate on a pitching career in organized baseball.

Sunday, October 12, the Reds are slated to play their last game of the season. On that date they will play a team picked from other clubs in the South Central Ohio league on the Ashville Community park diamond.

BRUDZINSKI HAS HIGH TOTAL AS BOOSTERS WIN

Wednesday night bowling at the Kelly Hannan alleys saw the Booster team wind up the evening high scores with 2499 as they took three games from Fords, while Brudzinski rolled 557 for high total for the winners. High individual game was held by L. Brinks with 227 for the Elks who nevertheless lost two games to Isalys.

Other games saw the Kiwanis number 1 team lose three games to the Post Office, while the American Legion whitewashed the Kiwanis second team, Hamiltons shut out the K of P bowlers, and Ringold took three from Rotary.

ANTI-GAMBLING DRIVE PLANNED AFTER HOLDUP

Mounds Club Robbery Brings Promises Of Cleanup In Cleveland Area

PAINESVILLE, O., Oct. 2—A full-scale anti-gambling drive in Lake county was promised today as investigation of the Mounds club holdup bogged down.

Eben Hager of Willoughby, chief constable, asserted that a new eight-man constabulary force to be established after the November elections would wage an unrelenting campaign to rid the area of organized gambling.

"We hope to obtain a couple of police cars, with radios and other equipment, and to provide real police service for Willoughby township," Hager said.

• • •

THE CHIEF constable said the law enforcement drive also would rid the area of slot-machines, of which "a few" are in operation at the present time, he admitted. The chief asserted that "the Mounds club does attract underworld characters," and would be a prime target in the cleanup drive.

Hager charged Lake county sheriff James Moloney and prosecutor Lester W. Donaldson with "laxness" in permitting the Mounds club to operate.

Cleveland detective inspector Charles O. Nevel, meanwhile, said the Mounds case was "cold." Nevel conferred with Sheriff Moloney yesterday but withheld details of the talk upon Moloney's request.

Nevel added that a substantial clew was needed before there could be any hope of tracking down the dozen masked robbers who escaped with cash and loot estimated to approach the half-million-dollar mark.

SOLDIER FAILS IN EFFORT TO EXPRESS GIRL

FRANKFURT, Oct. 2—An attempt by a G. I. to ship a pretty 20-year-old German girl by air express to the United States was foiled today.

The girl, Doris Von Kooblock, was found curled up aboard a plane in a wooden box which measured two feet wide, two feet high and was one and one-half feet long.

The box, consigned to a New York address by a G. I. whose name was withheld, was left at the freight office of an overseas airline while the G. I. sought to obtain enough money to send it by freight.

Operations officer William Waring, Long Beach, N. Y., became suspicious when he detected a slight movement and investigated.

He found that although the lid of the box appeared to be screwed down the cover actually was loose and the girl inside could open it at will. Inside with Doris he found some food.

Army investigators said it was believed the same G. I. had planned to mail a girl friend of Doris by air freight to a North Dakota address.

AMVETS OPEN THIRD ANNUAL NATIONAL MEET

Sad Sacks Urge Assistance For Widows, Children; Elect Officers

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2—Amvets—the infant of the congressionally-recognized veterans organizations—opened its third annual national convention today in Columbus.

Officials of the organization expected more than 5,000 delegates to attend its four-day conclave which is pledged to foster "freedom, liberty, justice and opportunity for all."

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, chief of naval operations; General Omar Bradley, veterans' administrator; and Sen. James R. McCarthy (R) Wisconsin headed the list of speakers who will address the session. Brig. Gen. J. M. Devine, who commands the Army's universal military training experiment at Ft. Knox, Ky., is also scheduled to address the delegates.

• • •

PRE - CONVENTION activities got under way last night with the fun-making section of the organization—the Sad Sacks taking a turn for the serious and adopting two resolutions.

The Sacks voted to call on each state "to share financially with the federal goverment the matter of increased payment of pensions to war widows and orphans." They also adopted a resolution seeking a plan to provide for a national home for orphans and war widows with children.

In addition, the Amvets' subdivision elected officers for the coming year. They were:

MANMADE RAIN MAY WASH OUT FOREST FIRES

CONROE, Tex., Oct. 2—Forest service authorities hoped today, despite failure of one attempt, to extinguish the series of timberland fires still raging in Southeastern Texas by making rain with dry ice.

More than 100 pounds of dry ice were sent to the forest fire area from Houston yesterday, but the clouds proved "uncooperative" and the experiment was not completed.

Another attempt at making rain by scattering dry ice among the clouds from a plane was scheduled to be made today.

The fires which were believed to be of incendiary origin were still raging in five Texas counties, but the situation was reported "much improved."

Texas Rangers have expressed the opinion that the fires were touched off by squatters who were seeking to drive large land owners from the timberlands.

The loss from the fires was estimated from a low of $450,000 to $9 million dollars, but forest workers said it still was impossible to determine the amount of damage at the time.

Words of the Wise

It is not enough that you can form, and follow, the most excellent rules for conducting yourself in the world. You must also know when to deviate from them, and where lies the execption.

THESE DAYS

By George E. Sokolsky

Therefore, prudent lending requires that the lender be always assured that his capital, while in other hands, is procuctive, is increasing wealth. When that is so, he has some assurance that he will receive compensation for the use of his money, namely, interest, and that his capital is safe.

Prudent lenders, like the wonderful 19th century British lenders, rarely were concerned about having their capital returned. Their major concern was interest. That is what they lived on. The capital could remain where it was helping to produce wealth. They looked upon every loan, even a political loan, as an investment. Gifts and non-productive loans were out of their field, although they were known to provide subsidies for value received.

This business has now moved to the United States and is handled mostly by the government, using taxpayers' money, the productivity of our farms and factories, and the manpower of our people in this enterprise. Having had no real experience in money lending, we at first confused loans and gifts, and lost.

With the exception of the RFC, under Jesse Jones, we used politicians, soldiers and professors to do the lending, with the result that prudence went by the board. Our present lending policies are imprudent, first because we do not make our loans productive, and secondly, because we do not insist upon control of the security.

If we are to make money-lending one of the principal activities of our government, as we have, we need experienced, prudent money-lenders for the job. There are none such now in Washington.

It is safest not to use a pin-type curtain stretcher for rayon glass curtains because rayon fibres are weaker when wet, although they regain full strength when completely dry. Delicate fabrics such as ninon or marquisette may be torn or injured during stretching.

Every week fans all over the country write to NBC's "Grand Ole Opry" requesting pictures of Red Foley and copies of the poems which he sometimes read over the air. So many requests have come in during the past several months that Foley has announced plans for a book of pictures and poems which he is compiling for his fans. Called the "Red Foley Keepsake Album," the book will contain pictures of Red, his family, and a pictorial history of his career in show business. In addition, he is including in the 50-page book most of the poems which have brought the greatest mail response during his years in radio. The "Keepsake Album" is expected to be ready for sale sometime next month.

Sandra Gould, formerly Miss Duffy on "Duffy's Tavern," cutting an audition record for her own show.Howard J. Although moderator Jack Barry didn't award her a diploma, nor did she deliver a valedictory speech, Patsy Walker in effect graduated from the cast of Mutual's "Juvenile Jury" with her appearance on the program of Sept. 28. Her stint on that program was her last because of the inflexible rule that panel members can not be older than eleven. Patsy will turn twelve several days after the program of the 28th.

More research goes into the writing and production of ABC's "The Greatest Story Ever Told" than probably any other dramatic show on the air. Bibles and Biblical records are exhaustively studied and the expert advice of churchmen and historians enlisted.

Lillian Randolph, who portrays "Birdie" on "The Great Gildersleeve," has a sister in New York City who is a night-club singer.

Tony Martin, the CBS Sunday star, seldom fails to spend five or ten minutes chatting informally with studio audience members following his broadcasts.

In World War I Paul Whiteman, heard as a disk jockey weekday afternoons on ABC, was a Navy bandsman, later played viola with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra.

Henry J. Taylor, heard Mondays and Fridays on "Your land and Mine" over MBS, pursued two successful careers before entering radio—first in the corn products industry and then in the paper industry.

Quietly, with stateliness, a Thursday night radio program has for 14 weeks been bringing to listeners tales of American history, wrapped in the dignity of the presidential office.

The two men responsible for the majesty of the dramatic series, titled "Mr. President" (ABC, 10 p. m. EST), are Robert Jennings and Edward Arnold, who share a consuming faith in the form of government that through elective procedures places a representative of the people in the executive post.

The idea for a series evolving around the little known but important incidents in the lives of our presidents came to radio producer Robert Jennings a year ago while he was driving on a lonely road in Maine.

The legal heads at ABC and CBS said it couldn't be done, or, with much head-scratching, maybe, and finally after two months of deliberation, they decided there would be no legal objections.

In a Chicago hotel lobby, a man with a bundle of scripts under his arm stopped actor Edward Arnold. "I had turned down three of four programs," he said on a visit to New York this week. "I thought this was just another. But when they finally caught up with me in Hollywood and I read the scripts, I said to myself: 'this is something worth while.' "

The series is a combination of education, drama, and a guessing game, woven with humor and warmth around lives of our American presidents.

The guessing game is something of a test of the listener's knowledge of his history. Each week the program opens as the butler admits a visitor to the chambers of the White House. The identity of the president is reserved for the final moments of the broadcast.

Mr. Arnold has an enthusiasm for the program touching on reverence. In a rather oblique fashion, "Mr. President" has had a distinct effect on the actor's life. Aboard the plane on the way from Washington to New York, the passenger in the neighboring seat turned to him and said: "how do you do, Mr. President."

Remembering the incident, Arnold rumbled forth in his famous laugh. "Maybe now," he chuckled, "they'll stop calling me Diamond Jim Brady."

One of Fred Allen's humorous versions of how he met Portland Hoffa, his wife, reveals that they met at a New York department store. The way Fred tells it, he and Portland met one day when she was window shopping there. Portland, he said, saw his reflection in the glass as he went by.

Lux Radio Theatre presentation of 'Two Years Before The Mast" gave youthful Wanda Hendrix her first role on the famous dramatic program. Wanda gave a smooth performance despite the fact that she was the only girl appearing with a cast of 24 men, one of the largest all-male casts ever to appear on the broadcast.

Comic strip fans will be glad to know that Edgar Bergen is planning to put Charlie McCarthy into the "funnies". Bergen is currently preparing for publication a comic book starring the wooden imp.

Oscar Levant, who will be heard with Al Jolson on the Kraft Music Hall, is one of the busiest persons in Hollywood these days. At present, Levant is deviding his time between Music Hall rehearsals and work on his new picture, "Romance In High C.".

Minerva Pious has been on the air with Fred Allen longer than any of the other regular members of Allen's Alley. The comedienne, who portrays character parts as well as "Mrs. Nussbaum" on the half-hour comedy show, will soon begin her fifteenth year with Allen.

Having robbed the owner of a shoe repair shop of his cash, hold-up men in Brooklyn, N. Y., knocked the man's false teeth from his mouth and made off with them, too.

Program Ready For 35th Annual Ohio History Day Observance At Logan Elm

Ohio's most famous tree—the Logan Elm—will be the gathering place next Sunday afternoon for several thousand people expected to attend the 35th annual celebration of the Ohio History Day Association.

Logan Elm is situated in Logan Elm State Park, located seven miles south of Circleville and one mile east of U. S. Route 23. Logan Elm Park is a state memorial administered by the Ohio Archaeological and Historical Society.

Sunday's program is scheduled to begin at 2 o'clock and Dr. Harlan H. Hatcher, dean of the college of arts and sciences at Ohio State University, will deliver the principal address.

• • •

IT WAS UNDER the ancient tree that Chief Logan of the Mingo Indian tribe made the speech now numbered among the world's masterpieces. In his 195-word address Chief Logan bitterly criticized the whites for their actions toward the Indians.

It was near Logan Elm that the Lord Dunmore treaty was signed in October, 1774. It was this treaty which brought temporary peace between the whites and the Indians.

The program has been arranged by a committee composed of Roy Sampson, Adena, Chillicothe; Eugene Rigney, president, Ross County Historical Society, Chillicothe; and David Crouse, president, Ohio History Day Association, Kingston.

Officers of the Ohio History Day Association include Mrs. Howard Jones, Circleville, president emeritus; John F. Carlisle, Columbus, vice president; Mack E. Noggle, Circleville, treasurer; Mrs. Helen Anderson, Circleville, recording secretary; and Mrs. Anna Chandler, Circleville, corresponding secretary.

• • •

DR. HATCHER, a World War I veteran, is a widely known author and he has lectured throughout the nation. He will be introduced to the Sunday assemblage by Mr. Rigney.

Dr. Hatcher was born at Ironton on Sept. 9, 1898. He was graduated in 1927 from OSU and took post-graduate work at the University of Chicago and also in Europe. He is a member of numerous professional and historical associations, is a trustee of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society, and in 1937-39 he was Ohio director of the federal writers' project.

The Shawnees long had possession of the land adjacent to the Scioto river and they maintained headquarters for their "last stand" against the white man at Cornstalk's and Grenadier Squaw's towns located along Scippo creek near the present site of the Logan Elm State Park.

• • •

CHIEF LOGAN was not a native Indian of the Scioto valley. He was a member of the Cayuga tribe of the Iroquois Nation and was known as a Mingo who found hospitality with the Shawnees in Ohio.

One of the original clans of the Shawnee Nation was called Pickaways and undoubtedly contributed to the naming of the present Pickaway county. Tshilikauthee appears, not only as the name of one of the clans of the Shawnees, but as that of their legendary leader who led them to the promised land; a new spelling and origin for the name that General Massie borrowed from the Shawnees to apply to the present Chillicothe, county seat of Ross county.
